Supporting parents, benefiting children

How does the school system work in Basel?

Where can my child learn German?

The school has sent me a letter: what does this mean?

I need to work – who will take care of my child?

Our family has so many worries! Where can I get some help?

There are some problems with my child's development. Who can I turn to?

Do you feel that you are left to deal with your questions alone?
Let us offer you some assistance and advice!

Who are we? We are a team of specialists trained in the intercultural sector working for the “BrückenbauerInnen (Bridge builders)” project. We have our own experiences of migration and are familiar with all the issues that may arise with children. We stand by your side, offer you advice and assist you with important questions involving your child. We help you to support your child’s development and maintain a good relationship with your child’s school and teachers.

What do we do? We regularly visit interested families, share information, explain the Swiss educational, health and social systems, highlight useful advisory centres and offerings and assist you with discussions at school or other institutions. We adapt our services to your needs.

Are you interested? If you are interested in receiving this kind of support, please call or write us an email. We will then get in touch with you. Our offering is available to you free of charge in eleven languages. You can find further information on our website: www.heks.ch/brueckenbauerinnen
